Personal Profile

I am a young and dynamic person, constantly challenging myself due to my ever changing interests. Being self-taught allowed me to use my curiosity in the IT sector to deepen my understanding of the fields I am passionate about. I pride myself in my work ethic, my punctuality and responsibility in my work. I am driven by novelty and I inexhaustibly search for new ways to test and improve myself. I am confident enough to resolve issues on my own, yet humble enough to ask questions. I care about my work and my coworkers. In a group setting I feel comfortable both as a follower and a leader, applying myself to lift the groups efficiency, communication and productivity. At my current job, I spend my own time to ensure the improvement of our product, customer relations, the well being of my peers and overall efficiency and security of our internal systems.

As a self-taught software developer I am looking for an employer that will provide an environment suitable for me to improve and grow on a personal and professional level. I am willing to change my localization and learn any required technology.
